Trump and The Normalization of Homosexuality, Not White Nationalism

It is true: Trump is the most gay-friendly Republican ever (after Lindsey Graham). The issue is barely even contested by conservatives anymore. Charlie Kirk famously had an exchange with a questioner whom he berated for daring to ask how buttsex helps conservatives win the culture war. The next question, what is culture and what is winning? Anyway, there are numerous examples (linked below) in which Trump has shown himself and proudly approved of his being pro-gay. This is not surprising. What it is weird is the schizophrenic mentality of the media, who'll claim he has really normalized hate.

The only hate Trump has normalized is that of the left towards, well, normalcy. Have you ever seen the left react more viscerally to anyone than Trump and his supporters? They seem to feel threatened, when there is zero evidence that he opposes them. He governs worse than Jeb Bush and yet somehow is called Hitler and beloved by the religious right. What this proves to me is that all these people are full of shit. The religious thought leaders on the right are more Republican than Christian and the left is more opposed to White people than actual for something.

The Trump phenomenon really is fascinating. He has singlehandedly managed to dupe all sides in opposite directions. The religious right loves him and thinks he's religious. The dissident right thinks he's the lesser of two evils. Conservatives can't suck his cock hard enough. The left thinks he's literally Hitler. Pelosi and the corporate left can’t reauthorize the Patriot act and Pentagon spending fast enough, while impeaching him for what Biden did. And more people are not voting than ever before. What is going on? America is simply a failed state, unable to help its own people, instead just endlessly replaying their bread and circus routine. No one opposes anyone yet everyone opposes everyone. It’s truly bizarre, but at the very least, entertaining.
